

EYE CATCHER Super-sized doors

Words Sarah Baldwin Photography Will Pryce

No, you're not looking at a still from The Borrowers, but at an extension to a London Georgian terrace. These huge doors are each five metres high and over a metre wide. Along with letting in light and linking the house to the garden, it's the wow factor that's their real plus. 'The whole rear of the extension opens up,' says owner and architect Dominic McKenzie. Made by Charles Collinge Architectural Ironmongery (020 7787 0007), they cost a fair whack – over £10,000 – but McKenzie kept down the installation price by getting his builder to carry them through the house rather than using a crane.